

POETRY.

THE DUTCHMAN'S MARRIAGE.

The following is a description of Squire Gable, the Dutchman's romantic marriage ceremony:

You tremble now, you gait man dare
Yet stand upon the shore,
To watch the woman for your wife,
And lo! her obsequies;

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE POOR DEBTOR.

BY ROBERT WALSH.

Some years ago I obtained judgment for a sum not very large, nor yet inconsiderable, against a fellow citizen, the father of a numerous family, who lived with them in a decent and apparently comfortable style.

My attorney accompanied me to the jail, which I entered for the first time. As we traversed the passage, we saw numbers of squalid beings collected in some of the rooms; these were the very poor debtors; some of them confined for a dollar, and added with cost of suits to thrice the amount.

There were two small children, a girl and boy, neatly dressed, playfully hugging each other near a cot, of which I noticed two, in opposite corners. Near the fire place, in which a few sticks were burning, sat a female of the middle age, and a genteel exterior, making up lines; by her a girl of about thirteen or fourteen years of age, with a graceful air and intelligent countenance, also working.

I shall never forget the glance which I got from the two females—it was one of mingled reproach, resentment, and piteousness; subdued, however, according to the habits of good breeding and the softness of the sex; two sportive children turned suddenly from their play, and stood gazing as if they had heard a sound which they connected fear and dislike.

I stammered something to the father about my uneasiness in recollecting what had happened; my regret at his situation; my title to complain of his conduct; the duty which I owed to myself and family, &c. He listened to me without embarrassment, observed when I appeared to have done, that I had exercised a legal right, and that he was not disposed to upbraid me or expostulate; and he then proceeded to give me explanations, which he said might relieve him from the suspicion of dishonesty or extreme levity in contracting debts, upon which suspicion I might have acted.

have a surplus, or could contrive to pay you by close retrenchments.

But it was indispensable to the success of my plans in business that I should keep up the appearance of some property—my wife and myself had been accustomed even to luxuries. In endeavoring to have our affairs liberally instructed and trained, we gave way only to the most powerful impulses of the heart, and to the consideration that they would be more able and eager to discharge their obligations, which their parents might not be competent to meet.

My eldest boy, and all the others, except the youngest darling, sleep at the house of a kind sister in law. We have friends who would come to our relief, but we did not wish merely to transfer a debt, in so doing, possibly injure those for whom we were bound to feel the most regard.

When my name struck the ear of the ingenious and spirited lad, his looks were such as his father thought it necessary to repress at once by a similar mien, directed to him: I could have felt no resentment if they had all rallied at me, so deeply contrite was I for having blasted the happiness and fortune of such a family, by a really unprovoked attempt to recover what was not necessary to my own support and credit.

You will think me tedious, Mr Editor, but I shall not trespass much longer on your patience. The sequel of my story is that my debtor, very soon after he was released, was obliged to emigrate with his family to a village in the interior, as he could not be reinstated in his credit and former career.

The National Eagle thus literally translates the "unwritten music of spring."

"How glorious is the voice of spring, proceeding from every living thing in the air, and among the reeds of the brook. Just listen! There's an old bull-frog on the margin of the stream, with one leg in the water by way of a cooler. How he turns away on his old base viol—'bung—bung—bung—bung—through—pout!'

Revolutionary Battles. We believe the following to be a complete list of the principal battles fought during the war of the revolution, with the exception of a few in the southern States.

Table with 3 columns: Battle Name, Date, and Reference. Includes battles like Battle of Concord, Battle of Bunker Hill, Battle of the Clouds, etc.

The St. Augustine Herald disputes the rumor that the Indians would experience a scarcity of provisions, as from the county of Alachua alone they had driven off 15,000 head of cattle, and east of St. John's river, and south of Jullington creek, from 4 to 500 more, and their own property in cattle amounted to 20,000, besides a number of horses, and the quantity of farm-house roots (chiefly arrow root) upon which they feed, are inexhaustible, having besides quantities of bread stuffs. They have carried off all the corn from the plantations and stored it, and with the extra labor of captured slaves in addition to their own, will be able to raise a handsome quantity. Besides, they have gathered a good deal of flour plundered from wrecks on the coast. One year it amounted to 1300 barrels.

ANOTHER LIFE LOST AT TRENTON FALLS. A letter, dated Trenton Falls, July 16, says: "As we were going out to see the falls, a boy came running saying that one of Mr. Thorne's children, a little girl about 8 years old, had fallen in and gone over the falls. All was confusion, and every man ran to the spot. As I was descending the winding staircase I found the ladder of the hotel some yards only dead, lying in the water, and the child's body seen in the distance, but not near enough to be seen. Mr. Thorne, with his family, had been to the extreme fall, and were returning, when they came to the 5th fall, the current had just taken the child from its father's arms, and was sweeping when in some way he fell with the child into the whirling waters below. The man was saved. It occurred at the same spot from which Miss Sydney fell in 1827. Nothing could be more distressing than the sight of Mr. Thorne's family as it returned. It was truly heart rending. The parents, a sister about 15, and 3 brothers—and one that was not."

PROSPECTUS OF A NEW VOLUME. The first No. to be issued on the second day of July next.

THE NEW YORK MIRROR.

A popular and highly esteemed Journal of elegant Literature and the fine arts: embellished with magnificent and costly engravings on steel, copper and wood, and rare, beautiful and popular music arranged for the Piano-forte, Harp, Guitar, &c.

Articles from the pens of well known and distinguished writers, upon every subject that can prove interesting to the general reader, including Original Poetry—Tales and Essays humorous and pathetic—Critical notices—Early and choice selections from the best new publications, both American and English—Scientific and Literary Intelligence—Copious notices of Foreign Countries, by Correspondents engaged expressly and exclusively for this Journal—Sketches upon the various productions in the Fine Arts that are presented for the notice and approbation of the public—Elaborate and beautiful specimens of Art, Engravings, Music, &c.—Notices of the latest Drama, and other amusements—Translations from the best new works in other languages, French, German, Italian, Spanish, &c.—and an infinite variety of miscellaneous reading relating to passing events, remarkable individuals, discoveries and improvement in Science, Art, Mechanics, &c. &c.

THE next volume of the New York Mirror will excel all its predecessors in Literary attractions, Engravings, Music and Typography. The best writers in the land will contribute to its pages, and a spirited foreign correspondence will be maintained. The sum of five thousand dollars will be paid for the original matter to be published in the course of the next volume! Besides which, choice translations from the French, German, Italian and Spanish; and selections from popular journals abroad will serve to give it variety, and render it one of the most piquant, fascinating and exquisite repositories of elegant literature and the fine arts extant.

LITERARY CHARACTER. Whatever may have been the attractions of the thirteen preceding volumes of the New York Mirror, the arrangements entered into and consummated for the present volume, are such that it will be published on the second day of July next, and in the pledge that, in every respect, but particularly in the literary department, it will greatly surpass all its predecessors, fully maintaining its preeminent position among the periodicals of the country, and offering a successful rivalry with the most valued popular periodicals of the British and Parisian press.

ITS STEEL ENGRAVINGS. The most distinguished artists have been employed to furnish designs and execute the plates for the beautiful series of pictorial embellishments, illustrative of American scenery, incidents, and personages, intended for the new volume, among which, from a chief source of Mr. Halleck, the only acknowledged portrait engraver of the gifted and universally admired author of "Fanny." The landing of Columbus, as described by Washington Irving, and the arrival of the English at Jamestown, from the tales of J. K. Paulding, painted by Chapman, expressly for the work, will be engraved by Danforth in his best manner. The fourth plate of this volume will be engraved by Saillie from a design by Weir. There will be four engravings in the course of the year, beside the vignettes, all the most exquisite specimens of the art that can be procured in all our native artists. The cost of these will exceed four thousand dollars. The cost of these will exceed four thousand dollars.

WOOD ENGRAVINGS. The perfection to which this art has been brought in the U. States induces us to promise a variety of specimens, comprehending brilliant and striking sketches of various subjects connected with the history, antiquities, and picturesque views of America.

ITS MUSIC. The last page of the Mirror will present weekly to amateurs, a popular piece, arranged with accompaniments for the piano forte, flute, guitar, &c. and consisting of choice morceaux from operas as produced here and in Great Britain, popular glee, ballads, songs, duets, waltzes, &c. forming in the whole a collection of choice and rare music, which, although occupying but little more than one sixteenth part of the work, could not be purchased in any other way, except at a cost far greater than that of our entire annual subscription!

From the foregoing it will be perceived that the plan of the Mirror embraces every subject within the range of the Fine Arts and the Belles Lettres, and an expense will be spared no reader is equal to any other publication extant. The flattering and great testimonials of writers, scholars and contemporary journals, on both sides of the Atlantic, have unequivocally asserted that there is no work which gives such valuable equivalents for the amount of subscription (five dollars per annum) or which possesses more strong and undeniable claims to the efficient support of the American people.

CONDITIONS. The Mirror is published every Saturday, at the corner of Nassau and Ann streets. It is elegantly printed in the extra super-royal quarto form, on beautiful paper, with heavier, thicker, and non-pressed type. It is embellished, once every three months, with a splendid super-royal Quarto engraving, in every week with a popular piece of music, arranged for the piano forte and guitar, &c. For each volume, a choice and highly engraved vignette title page, (printed by Weir and engraved by Danforth) and a copious index, are furnished. The terms are FIVE DOLLARS per annum, payable in all cases in advance. It is forwarded by the carrier mails to subscribers residing out of the city of New York. Customhouse duties, post paid, must be addressed to the Editor. No subscription received for a less period than one year.

NEW ESTABLISHMENT.

Important! TO PERSONS SUFFERING FROM RHEUMATIC COMPLAINTS.

To the Editor of the Inquirer: SIR—On the principle inculcated by the great and good Dr. Franklin, to diffuse as widely as possible every man in our power to mitigate or soften the afflictions of suffering humanity, I feel it incumbent upon me to make known through the medium of your useful paper that on reading therein an advertisement of Dr. Jobb's Linctus, for the cure of RHEUMATISM, I was forcibly impressed with a belief that it was calculated to remove the severe Rheumatic affection to which I had been for seven or eight years subjected, and sometimes almost depriving me of the use of my limbs. I accordingly procured a bottle, and before I had used the whole of it, found very sensible relief. This increased my confidence in it, and led me to obtain another bottle, the use of which has completely removed the swellings and pain of my limbs, together with the cramp, and restored them to their wonted vigor.

I am respectfully yours, GEORGE TAYLOR, Jr. Hempstead, L. I. March 24th.

Persons suffering from the above complaints, and in despair of a cure from the failure of the various remedies they have used, are invited to make trial of this long and celebrated medicine, which has in years past cured and relieved, as it is also now doing, thousands who had despaired of relief. Nothing but a fair trial can give an adequate idea of its unrivalled excellence. It is also one of the best applications known for stiffness of the joints, numbness, sprains and chilblains. Price 50 cents. None genuine unless signed T. KROMAN, on the wrapper, (sole proprietor and successor to Dr. KROMAN,) by whom they are for sale, at his Counting Room, No. 99, Court street Boston, and by his special appointment, by DANIELS & BELL, Rutland; LEVI LEWIS, Wells; ADAMS, WARNER & Co, Ludlow.
